Preliminary enrollments for fall 2009 are based on the latest available information from the following sources:

- For the University of Nebraska: University of Nebraska Central Administration.
- For the Nebraska State College System: System office.
- For the other sectors: Estimated enrollment that an institution reported to the NCES through Part B of the fall 2009 IPEDS Institutional Characteristics Survey or the actual headcount that the institution reported directly to the Coordinating Commission.

Statewide official enrollments for 2009 will not be available from IPEDS until May 2010.

See Table A1.2 for data summarized by institution.

<sup>2</sup>For-profit schools include three career schools of radiologic technology operated by not-for-profit hospitals or medical centers.

Estimated enrollments for fall 2009 are based on the latest available information from the following sources:

For the University of Nebraska: University of Nebraska Central Administration

For the Nebraska State College System: System office

For the other sectors: Estimated enrollment that an institution reported to the NCES through Part B of the fall 2009 IPEDS Institutional Characteristics Survey or the actual headcount that the institution reported directly to the Coordinating Commission.

<sup>5</sup>Kaplan University was previously known as Hamilton College. The change of name to Kaplan University was effective October 30, 2007.
